A Message to Our Truckers

'Twas the night before Christmas out on the roads, All the truckers were rollin' to deliver their loads.

They safely push for the delivery of items that must arrive, They're the backbone of our great country, necessary to survive.

Our awesome truckers will keep rollin' through ice, snow and sleet, While others across the land drift off for a long sleep.

When at last the trailer is empty the trucker will reach for his phone, To call his dispatcher and happily exclaim "Hey, I'm finally heading home!"

A trucker will roll all those miles and miles, And be welcomed home by family and friends with grateful hugs and smiles.

Our message to you, that stands so very true, We are beyond thankful for each and every thing that you do!

Wishing you and yours a wonderful, magical holiday season!
